Mental Health 2012 preliminary work plan

The Mental Health 2012 preliminary work plan was briefly discussed. The Mental Health Coalition is pushing the next five years on focusing across the lifespan and on Birth-to-3, as well as Brain Insights. They are also collaborating with other coalitions.

Discussion about lack of support groups.

- Can the Mental Health Coalition do an assessment of support groups rather than counseling groups?
- Informal support groups, like church groups, are becoming harder to come by but are more effective.
- Can Mental Health Coalition look into what support groups are available at the high schools?
- Can they look at outreach to small social groups, like knitting clubs, book discussion groups to see what their needs are and look at having those groups pass Mental Health Coalition information to their members?
- Maybe identify one topic (or bump in the road) and see what support groups are available across the life spans.

Erica informed group that the YBRS was handed off to Andrea Stefonek. Three Lakes and Rhinelander schools will be doing. They are still working on Minocqua. The schools question the validity of the answers. The biggest challenge for the schools is finding the time to do.
